Michael entered this piece in the Tweed Valley Art Prize at the Tweed Regional Gallery in 1994. It won the Major Acquisition Award and is now part of the Gallery's Collection.

The exhibition piece has hand turned legs in an antique style, the top has a moulded thumb nail edge. The "Bottle of Dom" is turned from laminated silver ash, and stained bottle green to match as closely as possible the real bottle; the label and foil coloured black. The "champagne" (comprising three pieces), spilling down the leg and onto the floor is routed and glued into the top, glued to the face of the leg, and fitted around the base of the leg and can be removed for shipping and storage purposes. Title: Private Commission - Entertainment Unit

A client required an entertainment unit that would hold the TV, Stereo and all his CDs together with a display space to show off their treasures collected from around the world.

The result is the collaboration between myself and the client, using various timbers, veneers and colour samples. The unit is made in modules and the red gum top in two sections. This was necessary due to availability of materials, weight and locality (3rd floor apartment). All hardware is Blum(c) brand including the concealed hinges, full extension metal drawer runners and fold away doors for the television. Title: "Waterlogged" Splash Table

Original: SOLD at Exhibition Materials: Australian Red Cedar (Toona australis) Finish: 2-pack polyurethane lacquer and waxed Size: 460mm H x 600mm W x 1300mm L Reproductions: This work can be reproduced in your timber of choice, contact Michael for more information.

The slab top is dependent on 'Mother Nature' for its shape, and has hand carved ends as well as the carving which represents the splash which follows a rock being thrown into water. The magazine rack rails are mortise and tenoned into the slab ends.
